Magnolia Wall Painting

A detailed botanical illustration serves as the background for the entire page. It features a dark navy blue background with various green leaves and large, pale pink flowers. The leaves are rendered with fine detail, showing veins and varying shades of green. The flowers are soft and delicate, with some petals showing a light pink hue. The overall style is reminiscent of traditional botanical art.

Ocre

DESIGNS

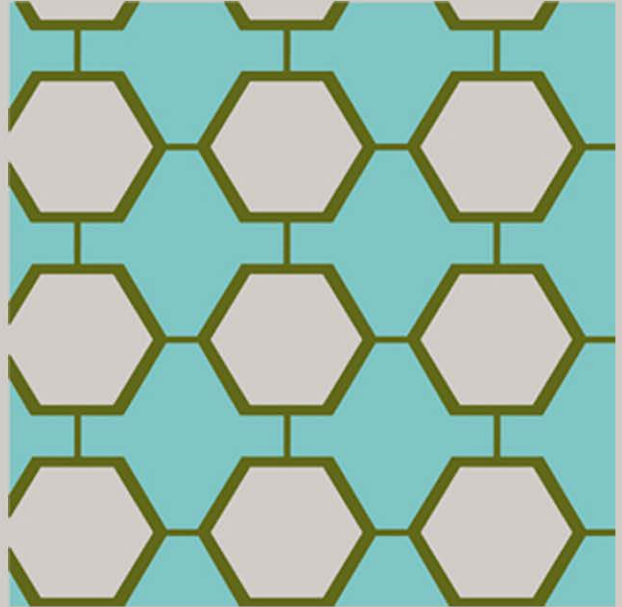

The Ocre Designs Textile and Wallpaper collections are originated from unique botanical paintings made by artist and designer Tarn McLean. Inspired by colours from the earth, Tarn paints each series as a way to celebrate the simplicity and elegance of varied botanical species. A salute to her great, great grandfather and botanical painter Adam Forster, whose paintings are now held in the Australian National Library, Canberra, Tarn is continuing the heritage by producing contemporary and usable collections, ensuring art is turned into beautiful designs.

Each collection reflects Tarn's exceptional perception of colour, with all designs specifically made in signature colour ways, enabling complementary interior decorating and longevity of design. The homewares addition to the Ocre Designs label, (established in 2008 offering limited edition, individually made handbags and silk clothing), reflects Tarn's commitment towards developing an ethically sustainable design house. All of the designs are printed to order in Australia on to residential and commercial grade papers as well as natural fibres including Belgian Linens and Cotton Velvets.
